

Announcing The New York College Transition Network

A joint initiative of the Literacy Assistance Center, the New York City Regional Adult Education Network, and the National College Transition Network

A Clear Mission

The New York College Transition Network (NYCTN) will work with adult education programs and staff to establish and strengthen college transition services for adult literacy students. The network will provide technical assistance, professional development, collegial sharing, advocacy, and activities to increase visibility.

Peer Support

The NYCTN will be a venue where New York–based adult education providers can explore issues associated with post-secondary transition for adult students, discuss policy and share best practices, participate in local, national, and online professional development events, and connect and contribute to the national movement for enhancing post-secondary transition services.

Membership Options

Programs and individuals can both choose between premium and free membership. Free memberships provide access to all professional development activities convened and facilitated by the NYCTN through the New York City Regional Adult Education Network. Premium memberships include access to professional services and materials produced by the National College Transition Network and free registration for the Effective Transitions Conference in Providence, Rhode Island.
